

DR. DAVID L. LANE

Dr. David L. Lane, affectionately called “The Golden Voice of the Southwest,” serves as minister to the Marsalis Avenue Church of Christ in Dallas, Texas. He also is CEO of JaKem Consorts & Leadership Institute.

He is a psychologist, psycho-therapist, professor, author, theologian, Personal Development and Self-Care Coach and a consultant for Aggressive Reduction Training.

Dr. Lane also is a pioneer developer of “Therapeutic Preaching,” and his 1989 doctoral dissertation is entitled “Therapeutic Preaching in the Black Church for the Teaching of Black Homiletics Students as Demonstrated in the Teaching and Preaching Model of David L. Lane.”

At Southwestern Christian College, he serves on the Board of Trustee Executive Committee and is president of the National Tau Phi Kappa, the ministerial fraternity.

Dr. Lane’s wife, Stephanie, holds a Doctorate of Education degree. The Lanes annually conduct Marriage Enrichment Conferences together. They have three grown children and two grandsons.

Dr. David L. Lane holds several honorary doctorate degrees, as well as a Ph.D. in Clinical Theology from Aspen University.