NATIONAL BOARD CERTIFICATION PROGRAM:
Preparing Teachers for Tomorrow

Harding University provides an opportunity for current teachers to take their career to a higher level through its National Board for Professional Teaching Standards Program; helping educators achieve National Board Certification.

NBCTs supported by Harding’s National Board Certification program experience a 1st year achievement rate of 55%, compared to the state 1st year achievement rate of 33% and national 1st year achievement rate of 40%!

Harding University National Board candidates in their 2nd year achieve at a rate of 81% - again much better statistics than the national and state averages!

The National Board Certification graduate capstone courses include:

- EDFD 644 – Pre-candidacy toward National Board Professional Teaching Standards (3 credit hours) - Begins June 2011

- EDFD 646 – Candidacy toward National Board for Professional Teaching Standards (3 credit hours) – Begins October 2011

Harding offers tuition scholarships for current educators enrolled in graduate courses. Teachers with graduate degrees and National Board Certification earn significantly higher salaries.

Harding’s National Board Certification program is offered on multiple campuses for your convenience:

- Bentonville
- Memphis
- North Little Rock
- Paragould
- Searcy
